PRO BONO PUBLICO.

Winbourn, near Molong,
December 4, 1849.

SIR,—I now return thanks for an almost miraculous cure, effected by your medicines.

For some two years back I had been attacked by dropsy, to which I thought I must fall a victim, my limbs being so swollen as to render me utterly useless to myself, and a burden to others. Having purchased, by a friend's advice, a box of Holloway's Ointment from Mr. Murray, in Molong, I was induced to persevere, and I am now, by the goodness of God, and by the help of these inestimable medicines, restored to perfect health; and for the benefit of those who labour under a similar complaint, I have the greatest pleasure in giving it publicity.

I remain, Sir,
Your obedient servant,
WILLIAM JOHNSON.

To Mr. J. K. Heydon.

Holloway's Pills and Ointment may be obtained of the wholesale agent, Mr J. K. Heydon, at the Depôt, 78, King-street, Sydney, and by appointed sub-agents throughout the Australian colonies. 1248

Mr. H. R. Smith—Crayon Landscape
Mr. Fowles—Crayon Landscape
Mr. Hipkiss—Fruit and Flowers.

In awarding the Prizes in the above order, the Judges cannot refrain from remarking on the excellence of the "Aboriginal Figure in Pursuit of Game," which is unfortunately inadmissible as a competing Picture under the Rules agreed upon by the Artists, but which would otherwise have taken the first place in the Exhibition,

The "View near Windsor" shows some careful drawing, but a want of chiaroscuro, and knowledge of composition, this artist would succeed better in smaller Pictures.

The "Acteon and Diana," exhibited as an Original Picture, is, on the contrary, a copy of Titian's celebrated Picture in the Stafford Gallery.

Catalogues will be ready on Wednesday next. 11062

"Sworn to no Master, of no Sect am I."

TARBAN CREEK.

It is not our duty to carry on controversy with correspondents. But, there are cases which occasionally occur, requiring of journalists a few words in self-defence. Dr. Campbell, of Tarban Creek, wishes briefly "to do himself justice." We wish as much as he that justice should be done to him. Nor are we conscious of any intention of misrepresenting him.

He accused the Reverend G. E. Turner of making "false and slanderous" assertions. He now accuses us of making in one short sentence "two assertions which are not true."

The assertions we made were, that Dr. Campbell admitted Mr. Turner's asserted fact to be such. The fact was, that "a man died unattended—that another did perish upon the cold stones," and that Mr. Turner "acts as" Chaplain of the establishment.

To this we reply. Let our readers compare, side by side, the statements of Mr. Turner and Dr. Campbell, and decide whether we have made an assertion "not true" in saying Dr. Campbell admits Mr. Turner's conclusion:—

Mr. Turner's Statement.	Dr. Campbell's Statement.
"I merely mention the fact, that not having been restrained, they either voluntarily deserted or were dragged out of their beds by some violent patients, and, being enfeebled by disease, were incapable of raising themselves from the cold stones, on which one of them absolutely perished. With further particulars of the statement made by the dispenser, I will not trouble you."	"James Hutchinson, whose death had been expected daily for the last ten days, and WAS LEFT BY MR breathing his last at half-past ten o'clock at night. WAS FOUND LYING ON THE FLOOR at the side of his bed on Monday morning, having fallen over when *death had deprived the body of the power of preserving its balance * * * he fell over by the natural powers of gravity* "Samuel Todd, who died on the Monday night, but with whose death his choosing to lie on the floor part of the night had as much to do as the reverend dictator himself, was moribund when he was received into the Asylum."

In justice to ourselves, the Rev. Mr. Turner, and Dr. Campbell also, we have put the words in italics to which we wish to call the reader's attention; and we have used no more of the statements of either than is absolutely necessary to meet Dr. Campbell's charge, that we have made "assertions which are not true," in saying that Dr. Campbell admits Mr. Turner's asserted "facts to be such."

Whatever skill Dr. Campbell may possess in putting a case to suit his own views, we have no object in taking advantage of a similar mode of dealing with a plain question.

If a court of enquiry shall say, that we have made assertions which are not virtually true, we will apologise to Dr. Campbell for the error into which he has betrayed us, leaving him to take his own course towards us if he shall be proved, instead of ourselves, the false accuser.

Respecting our second assertion, that the Rev. Mr. Turner "acts as Chaplain of that establishment," little more need be said; that he is the clergyman of the parish in which Tarban Creek is situated, and was called "Chaplain" in his appointment to the colony; that he did for a long time officiate within the walls of the establishment, and did on the occasion of the burial of the patients in question, "act as Chaplain to the establishment," by interring them, according to the rites of the Church of England, and by the directions of his Bishop, in a burial ground especially consecrated for the interment of patients dying in the Asylum.

If Dr. Campbell means that Mr. Turner "is not" in any sense, Chaplain, though he "acts as such" and is considered such, and that therefore we state what is not true in calling him so, all we can say is, a cause must be miserably bad which needs such support as that.

It is quite possible, that the Rev. Mr. Turner is not paid as Chaplain; but if he "acts as such," gratuitously, and is called on to "act," in all cases of death, and does not act for another, then he is virtually what Dr. Campbell denies him to be, but what we never actually said he was, "Chaplain to this Institution."

But at any rate, he is Chaplain of the parish, of which Dr. Campbell's inmates are inhabitants.

Whether Dr. Campbell, or any one else "acts as Chaplain" to the Institution, in other duties than in those connected with burial we know not—nor is it material now to enquire; we have sufficiently, we trust, assisted Dr. Campbell "to do himself justice," in showing from his own words, that "one man did die unattended," without a nurse, or any one to watch him, and that "he was found lying on the floor dead" the next morning; and that another "moribund" man did "lie on the floor" part of his last night, having "voluntarily deserted" his bed.

Whether patients ought to be allowed so to die, is one of the questions which a Court of Enquiry will publicly answer. We leave further remark till that answer shall have been recorded.

LAW INTELLIGENCE.

SUPREME COURT.—SATURDAY.

Before His Honor Mr. Justice Dickinson, and a special Jury of four.

DAVID HANNAM v. THOMAS CHAPMAN AND WILLIAM COOPER.

The Solicitor-General (with whom was Mr. Broadhurst) said, in opening of the plaintiff's case, that this was an action of trespass, brought to recover damages for trespasses committed to the close of the plaintiff, being a farm in the county of Cumberland, near the Cook's River Dam. The defendants have pleaded not guilty, and have set up in justification a public right of road over the farm in question, and alleging that because the fences, &c., complained of in the declaration were on the road, they broke them down, otherwise they could not use the road in question. The plaintiff has joined issue on the first plea, and replied to the second de injuria. It appears the plaintiff is owner of the farm in question; for years it remained unenclosed,—however in 1847 he caused it to be fenced in. The fences were not disturbed until the beginning of the present year. The plaintiff does not reside on the farm, or rather was not living there, when the defendants committed the trespasses presently spoken. The plaintiff's father, Mr. Reuben Hannam, having reason to suspect that the defendants were habitual trespassers on the farm, and that the defendants were about to pass over the farm on the 16th February of the present year, went in company with a servant of the name of Bull, to watch. Shortly afterwards, the two defendants came and cut down the fences, persisting, through all remonstrances, that they had a right of way over the farm. They passed through, and repassed on the same day. The learned counsel said, he would only in the first instance prove the actual trespass committed by the defendants, leaving the counsel to prove on the part of the defendants the existence of the right of way set up. If they attempt that proof, he, the learned counsel, would have another opportunity of addressing the Jury. As to the damages, the Jury ought to find, he admitted it was not a case where heavy damages ought to be given; but he would beg them to bear in mind, that the assertion of a right of road over a property was a damage to the saleable quality of that property, so that if that right of road were not proved, he hoped that this fact would be considered by them.

From the evidence of Mr. Reuben Hannam, and his servant, Bull, it appeared that the plaintiff's farm consisted of 60 acres, near the Cook's-River Dam. The farm was intersected by one road, the Illawarra road, which was fenced off on either side; another road bounded it on the east. The portion of the farm where the defendants claimed a right of road was near some rocks in the centre of the farm. Both the above witnesses clearly proved the trespasses complained of. The defendants came to the fence and attempted to remove it; being told by the witnesses that there was no road there, they persisted in saying there was, and actually removed the fence with force. Reuben Hannam told the defendants if they wanted to claim a road there, they ought to go to the Quarter Sessions and have the point settled. The defendant Chapman said, he would have law for the road, denying that the Judge and Governor of the colony had power to settle the question of a disputed road. The defendants having so removed the fences, passed on towards Sydney; defendant Chapman returned in the afternoon, (in the mean time, the fences having been again placed up,) and again claimed a right of way. A dispute again took place, but Chapman did not persist in passing through, though he did apply an axe to the fence; upon going away, he threatened again to come and remove the fences on the following Monday. Between the defendant Chapman first coming, and his return, defendant Cooper again attempted to pass through with a dray; but upon an objection being raised thereto, went away. In the disputes that took place between Reuben Hannam and the defendant Chapman, the former offered to allow the defendant to go through, provided it could be shown that there was a road where the trespasses were committed, he asserting that he had never heard of a road there, whilst the latter asserted one had been marked out. On the Monday after the Saturday in question, the fences near where the defendants claimed the road were found to be rased to the ground to the extent of thirteen or fourteen panels;—the fences in question had been up about eighteen months, without ever having been disturbed.

Hannam proved, on cross-examination that he put up the fence in question, one Trimby, a publican in the neighbourhood, carting and finding the timber. He proved also, by the fences being laid prostrate, the plaintiff's cattle wandered off the farm, and other cattle, strangers, came on. It appeared that the trespasses had been made a ground of complaint before the magistrates, but they having no jurisdiction refused to entertain it.

Mr. Foster (with whom was Mr. Darvall) in addressing the jury for the defendants said, it was ridiculous to attempt to swell the damages by proving that the plaintiffs horses wandered out off the farm—for from all he could learn from his instructions, it was a very charitable act for any one to break down the fences and let out any poor beasts that might be enclosed within them. It was equally ridiculous to talk of strange cattle depasturing on the farm, and for the same reason—because the farm, as far as pasturage is concerned, yields no more than a pound generally does. It was plain the farm could never have been fenced in for any other purpose than in order to close up the proper road, and compel travellers to go round by Trimby's public-house. The plaintiff's witnesses must have misunderstood the defendants, when they report that the defendants said the Judges had no power to settle the dispute as to the right of road;—what was said was, that the magistrates had no such power; and in this the defendants were right. The learned Counsel said, he had not moved for a nonsuit, but would still throw out the same point (on which he might have moved) to His Honor, and through him to the Jury, and upon which he would contend that he was still entitled to a verdict. The point was this, the declaration complained of a trespass to a close—the defendant pleaded generally a right of way over the close in question. The plaintiff, in proving his case to-day, had shown there was a public right of way other than the one in dispute over the farm; this proof alone would prove the defendants' plea. The plaintiff, instead of replying de injuria to the plea, ought to have new-assigned trespasses extra viam. Not having done so, a verdict ought now at once to pass for the defendants. The learned counsel was proceeding to go on with his address to the Jury, when

His Honor interrupted him by saying, that he would like to hear from the counsel for the plaintiff their answer to this point.

The Solicitor-General and Mr. Broadhurst, after arguing the point for some time, suggested that the map or plan, if amended, which was filed with the pleadings, would obviate the difficulty. As depicted on the map, the Illawarra road in question appears to pass through the plaintiff's farm; but if the latter road on the map were made to appear to bound on one side the close trespassed upon, then the objection would be groundless, and the plan and description of the close in the declaration would agree. This amendment could be made under the Law Simplifying Act. It was contended also, that de injuria was pleaded not only to the right of road, but to the removing the fence, &c.

His Honor eventually said, he felt some difficulty in saying what was the effect of the replication of de injuria to the second plea. He was at present of opinion, that here it put in issue the whole of that plea, and that by it the defendant had made answer to the breaking the fences, &c., as substantive trespasses, they having been so alleged in the declaration. The point raised was one of great embarrassment, and he thought upon the whole he had better let the case proceed. He refused to make the amendment asked, thinking he had no power to do so.

Mr. Foster proceeded: The plaintiff had a grant of the farm in question in the year 1833. That grant contained the usual reservation in such documents, as to the power of the Crown from time to time to make roads through the land granted. It became desirable years since on the part of the Government to sell certain Government waste lands in the neighbourhood of Cook's River. Partly with this object in view, the Cook's River Dam was built. It was also suggested by the Surveyor-General to the then Governor, Sir George Gipps, that the said land would sell the more profitably if the Government roads were marked out. Accordingly, His Excellency issued his authority to mark and carry out, amongst other roads, the one set up by the defendants, which they contend, passed through the plaintiff's farm, where the alleged trespasses were committed. Two surveyors were then deputed to mark out the road in question, Messrs. Gorman and Darke were the surveyors appointed for that purpose; they actually marked out the road in question on the farm of the plaintiff; and as a road it was used for some time. Maps of the lands about to be sold representing the several roads running through it were prepared by the Government surveyors; they were exhibited to the public, and land was actually sold according to them. The maps in question exhibit the identical road in dispute as running through the plaintiff's farm. It will be proved that at this very time a marked tree road is now to be seen there. This road runs on to a place called Rocky Point.

The grant to the plaintiff was then put in, it contained the usual reservation as to Her Majesty's right to carry out roads through the land thereby granted. The correspondence with the Surveyor-General and the then Governor, as to the making and laying out the roads over the land about to be sold near Cook's River were put in and read; but were not received without objection, founded on the circumstance that the Governor in issuing these instructions had not complied with the terms of the Act giving the Governor power to make roads. His Honor, however, overruled the objection. It was also shown that Messrs. Gorman and Darke were employed to make and carry out the roads; that the road over the plaintiff's farm existed and had been traversed. Two of the men, Dillon and Sheldon, who worked with Mr. Darke in marking out the roads in the Cook's River district, were called, and who proved that the road went through the farm of the plaintiff. One of these men proved that he, in common with others, had used the road as a public one since the Cook's River Dam was finished. The road in question, after traversing the plaintiff's farm, proceeded to a place called Rocky Point. This witness also proved that he had lately pointed out some of the trees on the plaintiff's farm, still showing Surveyor Darke's marks. It was proved that Messrs. Gorman and Darke, Government surveyors, were in the interior and therefore were not forthcoming; but to show that they had performed the duty imposed upon them in laying out the road in question, a copy of a letter, retained in the Surveyor-General's Office, written to them, or one of them, relating to the road in common with others by the Surveyor-General, and the answer thereto, showing that the tenor of the instructions had been complied with, were offered in evidence, but were refused by His Honor. The public map, also offered in evidence with the same view, having, as it was said, a tracing of the road in question over the plaintiff's farm, but was refused.

Sir Thomas Mitchell, the Surveyor-General, proved that Messrs. Gorman and Darke had instructions to make a survey in the neighbourhood of the Dam, and which included the laying out a road from the Dam to Rocky Point. Darke finished the survey in question, and no fault was found with that gentleman's work; he said there ought to be a road from the Dam to Rocky Point over the plaintiff's farm; he had been on the ground whilst the survey was being made, but he could not say that he was on the plaintiff's farm. To show that the Government had adopted the survey of Darke, especially as to laying out the road in question, it was proposed to show that a Government map, representing that road, was exhibited at a government sale of waste lands, and that land sold according to it. His Honor refused to receive the map on this ground. Mr. Langley, a surveyor, proved that he was shown by the witness Dillon the marked road on the plaintiff's farm, and that a map now showed, correctly showed that road

Here closed the defendants' case.

The following evidence was then adduced on behalf of the plaintiff.

Reuben Hannam proved, that though he had lived on the adjoining farm for 16 years, he never heard of the surveyors having been on the plaintiff's farm marking out the road, and never saw them there. Before the farm was fenced in, the public traversed it in all directions, without following any particular line of road. Before the fence was erected, one of the defendants attempted to traverse the farm, but in a different direction to where the road now claimed is. The fence remained up for 18 months without being thrown down. Other witnesses proved, that the plaintiff's farm was traversed right and left by wood carts before it was fenced in, and that they had not seen any trees there which were marked by surveyors. Mr. Bemi, the surveyor, proved that there was a road on the east of the farm, bounding it in that direction, and another running through the farm known as the Illawarra road, but that there was no open road where defendants alleged there was.

Mr. Foster replied upon this evidence, contending that the plaintiff's attempt to prove that the road in question was not marked out, was a total failure. From the defendants' witnesses' evidence, there could be no doubt that the surveyors had marked the road out on the trees; and the only conclusion they, the Jury, could come to as to the contradiction, was that the plaintiff's witnesses had not seen those marks, or were not willing to admit they had done so.

His Honor, at this stage of the case, addressing the defendants' counsel, said, he did not see any evidence given on the part of the defendants, to show that the fence, &c., pleaded to in the special plea, was across the road marked out by Darke, and therefore he thought there must be a verdict for the plaintiff, with damages for the value of the fences broken down.

Mr. Darvall proposed to supply that deficiency, if it existed, by calling a witness to prove that the fence was across that road.

After some little argument, His Honor thought, to meet the justice of the case he ought to allow a witness to be called to prove the fact.

Mr. Unwin then proved that since the action was commenced—about six weeks ago; he was shown by the defendant, Chapman, where the fences were broken down. He observed two gaps in the fences; both gaps were across the road in question; he did not see the marked trees, but saw a well defined track of a road going through the gaps; the gaps correspond with the alleged trespasses as marked on the map furnished by the plaintiff to the defendants.

Other evidence was subsequently offered, which tended to show that marks on the map spoken of by Mr. Unwin were not made by the plaintiff's attorney.

The Solicitor-General then replied on the whole case: He said, His Honor having intimated that the Governor had the power to make the road, in the way it is sought to be shown he did, he would not trouble the Jury on this point. He contended that the evidence failed to show that the instructions issued had been obeyed. Again he contended, that it never could have been the intention of Government to have carried a third road through so small a farm as the plaintiff's. Granting that what did take place was a marking out of the road, the evidence also failed to show that the road had been continuously used by the public. But he would deny, that supposing the road had been marked out by Darke, that the Government by that mere circumstance intended to carry that road through the plaintiff's property; at the most, it must be taken as a mere preliminary step to the making a road there,—if the Government should hereafter deem it necessary. To make a dedication of a road by the Government, there must be some evidence to show that it had been proclaimed to the public, and not kept secret. What evidence was there that this alleged road had been proclaimed as a road? The defendants had to make out their plea, viz., that there was a public road; and moreover, in addition, that the fences prostrated by the defendants were on that road. He concluded by saying, that neither branch of the plea had been made out, and therefore the verdict ought to be for the plaintiff, accompanied with reasonable damages.

His Honor summed up very carefully to the Jury. After stating the nature of the action, and that of the first issue, said, if the evidence of Reuben Hannam and Bull were believed, provided the plea of justification had not been made out, there was no doubt that the trespasses were committed by the defendants. The plea of justification, said His Honor, involved two points, viz., as to the existence of the public road, and as to the fences being on it. If the defendants proved both these points, then they would be entitled to a verdict. His opinion as to the letters put in by the defendants was, that they showed that the then Governor had issued instructions to have roads made in the neighbourhood of the plaintiff's farm. The question then was, had those instructions been carried out, especially as to the making and marking out of the road relied on by the defendants? He referred to the contradictory evidence, both as to the marking the road out, and its usage by the public. Suppose the road were marked as alleged, had that marking out been repudiated by the Government; if not, had the making of that road been published and communicated to the public, so that it might be generally known. In conclusion, he read over the notes of the evidence taken, telling the jury that if they found for the plaintiff, then they would have to award him reasonable damages to compensate him for the injury done.

The jury retired for a short time, and found a verdict for the plaintiff on both issues,—damages £1.

Attorneys for the plaintiff, Messrs. Little and Yeomans; and for the defendants, Mr. Unwin.

Cause List for To-day.—Mallady v. Bradley, before a special jury.

His Honor announced, at the rising of the Court, that as there were still several cases on the list for trial before juries of four, and as according to the rendering of a rule of Court in that behalf, the Nisi Prius Court must sit and dispose of them, after the trial of the special jury case, (Mallady v. Bradley), and as there is not a sufficient time to summon a fresh jury, he was sorry to inform the jury on the present panel, they must give their attendance on Tuesday next.

Masonic Ball.—The public will perceive that the brethren of the mystic tie purpose giving a ball at the Royal Hotel this evening; and moreover, have determined on admitting strangers to their festivities. The policy of so liberal a step on their part cannot be doubted, as hitherto their proceedings have been so shrouded in mystery, that non-masons have had afforded to them no opportunity of judging of the objects which they have in view. The excellent band of the 11th Regiment will be in attendance.

Hillyer to that of Deacon. The candidates were presented by the Rev. W. H. Walsh, who, together with the Rev. R. Forrest, and the Rev. G. King, assisted in the imposition of hands. The sermon was preached by the Bishop from the 16th verse of the xv. chap. of St. John's Gospel "Ye have not chosen me but I have chosen you, and ordained you, that you should go and bring forth fruit, and that your fruit should remain."

Police Office.—The sitting magistrates on Saturday were, (besides the Mayor, who was on the bench as usual, at the opening of the Court.) Mr. Campbell and Mr. Brenan, (two of the justices rostered for the day,) and the Superintendent of Police. The roster for this day (Monday) contains the names of Alderman Egan, Councillor Flood, and Alderman Fisher.

Alleged Burglary.—On Friday last, a man named Cleveland, was given into custody of constable Chambers, charged with having, between the hour of midnight on Thursday, and six on Friday morning, broken into the house of one West, a publican, residing on the Parramatta Road, and stolen therefrom, three fans, two shells, and one decanter stand. It appeared, from the evidence, that on Thursday night the accused went to West's with some woman of loose character; he and the woman left on Thursday night, that on Friday morning the articles mentioned were missing from the mantel-shelf, and that several pictures which had been hanging against the wall were on the sofa, apparently prepared for removal on a convenient opportunity offering. On Friday morning, the prisoner and another man went to the house; he was accused of the robbery and ran away; in his flight, Mrs. West saw him throw away one fan; he was apprehended, and on his person were found the two other missing fans, and the decanter-stand. Mrs. West gave in evidence, that before prisoner left on Thursday evening, he had no money to pay for some liquor he ordered for himself and companions at the bar; after his apprehension by the policeman, the sum of 6s. 2½d. was found on him, as also a silver watch. Prisoner admitted that the things spoken of were in his coat pocket, but how they came there he did not know, some mischievous person must have put them there while he was under the influence of liquor, besides which he had been himself robbed of money and a hat, and personally ill-used in West's public-house. The bench committed him to take his trial, which was a duty the nature of the evidence made imperative; if the prisoner had been served as he stated, it should operate as a warning against keeping such company, as he admitted he had on this occasion. The prisoner is, we learn, an officer of one of the vessels in harbour, lately arrived from England. Bail was allowed.

Coroner's Inquests.—On Saturday last, an inquest was held at the Benevolent Asylum, on view of the body of James Pennild. Deceased was in the employ of Mr. Andrew, at Petersham, and having been complaining for some days, was, on Friday morning, brought into Sydney, taken to the Asylum, and immediately attended to by the house surgeon of the institution, but died in less than an hour after his admission. Mr. Ross having deposed that death was the result of natural causes, the Jury found a verdict in accordance with that evidence.

Deficient Weight.—Nine persons were, on Saturday, convicted of having false weights in their possession, and sentenced in the minimum penalty of 5s. for each weight, with 5s. costs in each information.

We are requested to direct particular attention to the sale, this day, by John G. Cohen, of landed property in the city of Sydney, being ninety three allotments Brisbane Distillery. The allotments having been laid out so as to enable all classes of purchasers to avail themselves of investing a small amount or large in property which must increase daily in value; the terms being unusually liberal (one, two, three, and four years credit)—that such an opportunity of purchasing should not be missed. PARRAMATTA.

Court of Petty Sessions.—Present, Mr. Hardy, P.M., and Mr. Fearon, J.P. A hawker's license to carry goods about the person in the town of Parramatta was granted to Isaac Broderick.

Excessive Charge on Impounded Cattle.—Mr. Henry Walker summoned one of the troopers of the Mounted Police to answer for having made a charge of two shillings for cattle impounded out of the Government paddock. Several witnesses were called on behalf of the plaintiff, and every one of them swore to the fences being good and substantial; but that a part of the fence had been removed by persons going into the enclosure for water. As the witnesses for the plaintiff proved all that was necessary for the defence, their Worships dismissed the case.

Shutting a Toll-Gate.—A few days since, Archbishop Polding was on his way to Parramatta, and when he arrived near the gate at the Sydney end, the keeper shut it and demanded toll, stating among other reasons, the circumstance of a decision made by the Police Bench at Parramatta, when the chief constable summoned the keeper of the Brokenback Bridge toll-gate for charging him toll when he passed for the purpose of going to the opening of a Roman Catholic chapel on a Sunday. The magistrates having decided that it was not the plaintiff's proper place of worship, and dismissed the case. The Archbishop remonstrated with the gate-keeper upon his right to pass, as clearly set forth in the Act 2nd William IV., No. 12, 8th clause. After a time, however, the Bishop was allowed to pass, upon the promise that if the charge was legal he would pay it.

Accident—Mr. Gibbons, the Wesleyan schoolmaster stationed at Baulkham Hills, was going along Church street, on his way home, and the Windsor coach was proceeding in the same course; Mr. Gibbon's horse became restive, and backed against the coach, which struck the rider a blow on the leg and caused a fracture, as also a violent blow on his head, while the coach wheel passed over the horse. Mr. Gibbons was taken to the hospital.

Concert.—Mr. Stanley has given notice of a concert, to be held at Nash's hotel, on the 2nd July, on which occasion the celebrated vocalist Miss Sara Flower is engaged to take part.

The Fancy Ball.—This projected assemblage is being got up with much spirit, and many tickets have been taken in Sydney, as well as in this place.

The Water Works.—Several influential gentlemen have met and visited the intended spot for the dam, and among the party was the honorable member for Sydney. We hope and trust that before long arrangements will be made for carrying out this much desired object for supplying the town with pure water.

ORIGINAL CORRESPONDENCE.

BANKING.

To the Editor of the Sydney Morning Herald.

Gentlemen,—Your correspondent W. Z. makes a very ridiculous if not disingenuous use of a verbal inaccuracy in my reply to his former communication. I alleged that the deposits consisted in the first place of the annual value of the exportable product of the colony in the market and the world, and in the second place of the accumulated savings of the community. A fair disputant would immediately have understood the words to mean that at any given time the amount of deposits combine partially the one and partially the other; but your correspondent imagines he proves that there are no accumulated savings, by asserting that the gross exportable product is more than equal to the average amount of deposits! Such puerile quibbling is utterly unworthy of the subject under discussion. Every one knows that the deposits arising from the value of the exportable product arise gradually as the produce comes to market; that part of this value becomes concurrently with its realisation the property of various classes of the community, and that when thus distributed it partakes in a greater or less degree of the character of surplus profit, or clear saving. And that there has been even throughout the late disastrous monetary crisis a large accumulation of such savings lying at the Banks unemployed at the credit of colonists—many of whom never had discounted in their lives—no man at all conversant with the circumstances of the colonists will deny.

Your correspondent's argumentum ad absurdum, drawn from the application of the same principle to the Bank returns of 1844 is therefore a miserable failure. The deposits in 1844 and in 1850 were equally the disposable capital of the community, or the Bank returns involve the crime of wilful perjury.

I have never said, nor do I remember that yourselves or any of your correspondents have said, that the whole of the amount of deposits could be converted into Banking Capital, but I have said that from the fact of an increase of disposable capital amounting to £200,000 in one year, without any corresponding increase in the amount of bills discounted, it is a legitimate inference that that amount is available for permanent investment, either as Banking Capital, Railway Stock, or otherwise.

It has been said by a distinguished statesman of our day, that language was given to man to enable him to conceal his thoughts. This is obviously the purpose to which it is applied by your correspondent in both of the two following passages. Commenting on my statement as to the origin of the deposits, he says—

> Granting, for the sake of argument, that this definition is correct, I would ask how can we at the same time send produce to England or elsewhere, and retain the representative of its value, figuring as deposits in Banks in the colony, without the intervention of Bank Banking facilities, and the accommodation of Bank advances? Were there no Banks to advance, there would be no deposits to figure as the result of these advances; I consider then I am warranted in saying, that in so far as the deposits arise from advances made by Anglo-colonial Banks, in so far are they the creation of Anglo-colonial Banks.

That is to say, so far as I exchange one commodity for another, that commodity is created by me. But not only so, the commodity given in exchange by the Banks in the case above cited is actually furnished to the Banks by the colonial merchant. The simple principle of the exchange operations of any country is, that its imports must balance its exports,. And while with the one hand the Banks make advances to the "Suffering Squatter" on the value of the wool and tallow, with the other they receive the means of doing so by selling their own bills to the colonial merchant; and this operation could be done and has been done generally throughout the mercantile world, by mercantile rather than by Banking agency.

The second passage I refer to is as follows :—

"If a bank steps in and discounts the bills, are not the deposits arising from such anticipation of the proceeds the creation of that Bank? and am I not borne out in saying that the deposits in the English banks, in so far as they are the proceeds of bills discounted by these banks, are the creation of Anglo-colonial discounts?

Not to repeat the remark above made as to the creation of one thing by giving it in exchange for another, which, however, is equally applicable here, I am quite content to admit that so far as the deposits consist of the proceeds of bills discounted by these Banks with their own capital, so far the gross amount of the deposits is increased by their operations. This position has never been called in question, and your correspondent would do the public better service by applying his talents and his knowledge of the operations of the English Banks to the determination of the question, what that proportion actually is, than by expending it in a mass of verbiage that means nothing.

"Assuming that the working assets of the Banks consist of bills discounted and coin," it may be necessary to exclude from our estimates the landed property appearing in the returns of the respective Banks, but it will be equally necessary to exclude £60,000 of its own shares held by one of the English Banks as an asset, and the Barrier Island and sundry flocks of sheep held by another, both of which are, however, included in the estimates of working capital, on which the discussion has hitherto proceeded; and it is more than probable that landed property in Sydney would be a more available asset in an emergency than any of the others; although there cannot be two opinions that the holding of such assets by any Bank can only be justified by the necessity arising out of the recent commercial crisis.

The balances due from other Banks in London to the Colonial Banks stand in a very different position from the capital of our English Banks employed in London, inasmuch as they are not so liable to be tampered with, either by being lent on the security of indigo plantations, or being made the means of giving the London Directors a monopoly of the consignments to this market; and because, in the second place, there is no legal difficulty in recovering the debt, and the colonial creditor has the colonial property to look to for his security.

I do not know a more paltry or disreputable shift, than that with the recommendation of which your correspondent W. Z. winds up his letter. There is first an argumentum ad hominem on the subject of the railway, and then a suggestion that if we do not wish to damage our chance of getting our railway stock taken up in England, we must conceal the fact that a large amount of colonial capital lies wholly unemployed in the Colonial Banks. Out upon such vile trickery! Let not our great national undertaking be reared on the foundation of a constructive fraud on the part of the colonial public, or the colonial press. Better will it be, far better, to tell the English capitalist the plain truth, that there are large funds available in the hands of the colonists to make a railway profitable, by their application to purposes of internal improvement, although not available for the formation of the railway itself. And such a phenomenon admits of a very easy and very satisfactory explanation.

Your correspondent, however, need not give himself any anxiety on this subject. Within the last week I have seen a letter from the celebrated bankers Overend and Gurney, intimating that our Government debentures secured on the land fund would not be negotiable in the London market. And, I believe, a mercantile house in Sydney has received a similar intimation from its London correspondent. If so, I submit, all hopes of disposing of Railway scrip in the London market must for the present be abandoned, unless, indeed, it could be disposed of in exchange for the material of the Railway itself to some of the great English Railway Contractors. And it is much more likely to be disposed of in this way, from the fact that the colony possesses a large amount of available capital. No sensible man would risk his money in an investment of this kind for the benefit of an impoverished community.

One word to Gaffer Gray. I admit all that he has said as to the course of events which has led to the present state of things. No language is too strong to characterise the infatuation of the colonial Banks, in neglecting the imperative duty of meeting, as they arose, the increasing wants of the mercantile community. But that is wide of the question,—Is the existing state of things the most beneficial to this community? and if not,—Can a remedy be found? These are the questions under consideration, and these questions Gaffer Gray has not condescended to grapple with.

Gaffer attempts, however, to make it appear that the present discussion is hostile to the principles of Free Trade. Mr. Martin's Bill certainly may be open to that imputation; but Mr. Martin's Bill met with no support, and, I presume, the tendency of any discussion is not to be determined by any side play that an individual, possessed of imperfect information on the subject may thereby be prompted to indulge in. I submit, no dispassionate observer would for a moment consider Mr. Martin's Bill the legitimate offspring of this discussion, although a man out of temper, like your good friend Gaffer Gray, may think proper to allege such a paternity.

Mr. Murray's motion stands on a totally different footing, and is precisely such a motion as ought to have received the most serious consideration of the legislature. Gaffer and his friends insist that it is purely a matter for the consideration of the depositors; and yet they would stigmatise the consideration of the matter by the largest depositor—the Government—as a violation of free trade. The question affects the security of public money, and yet the conservator of all public rights,—the legislature under whose authority these moneys are raised and applied, must not inquire into the guarantee afforded for their safe keeping, without incurring the charge of an infringement of the principles of free trade. Certainly free trade of this kind, where the freedom is all on one side, was never heard of until it made its appearance in this controversy.

ABRAHAM CASHMAN.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald

GENTLEMEN,—In your issue of yesterday, I notice a letter signed "An Honest Man," upon the subject of Architectural Composition, in which is set forth the injustice the system is liable to, and concluding with a paragraph, expressing a hope, "that in future, neither canvassing, nor pledging of votes, nor any disreputable stratagem be resorted to." I am not aware of any local instance that may have given rise to the remarks of "An Honest Man," but this I beg to submit, that the members generally of the Architectural Profession in Europe decline risking their time and talent in public competition.

The usual system now adopted is this. A certain number of known architects are applied to, say one, two, or three, according to the magnitude of the intended outlay, and an allowance is then named for each of the two second best designs—the one chosen as the best to receive the premium. This course is found to work well for both the employer and the employed, as on the one hand, there is the combined talent of the three designs which may be made available, if desirable, while, on the other hand, each competitor works with the knowledge of at least being paid for his design.

I may further add, that the architect of the chosen design looks forward to be called upon to execute it (as his copyright) in which case the amount of premium verges into the commission.

LAND.

IMPORTANT SALE IN THE CITY OF SYDNEY, BEING PART OF THE BRISBANE DISTILLERY ESTATE.

SUBDIVIDED INTO ALLOTMENTS, TO SUIT SMALL CAPITALISTS, TRADESMEN, BUILDERS, AND OTHERS.

JOHN G. COHEN has received instructions to submit to public competition, at his Rooms, 490, George-street,
THIS DAY, JUNE 24,
At 12 o'clock precisely,

THESE NINETY-THREE ALLOTMENTS —Being a portion of the above Estate, advantageously situated in the vicinity of the RAILWAY TERMINUS, and comprise the lines of Gooper-street, Brisbane-street, and Montrose-street, running North and South. Charles-street, Parramatta-place, and Abercrombie-street, E. and W. to Parramatta-street.

The plan being laid out in convenient allotments, from

20 FEET BY 50
TO

to suit every class of purchasers.

This neighbourhood, full of the leading Factories of the City, as the

Sugar Refinery,
Tooth's Brewery,
Brisbane Distillery, Mills, &c.,

is still more a favoured spot by adjoining the RAILWAY STATION, which must immediately greatly enhance the price of land and buildings in that vicinity.

Parties will also do well to bear in mind the recently established Building Societies, which enable any industrious man, after a few years, steady application, to live in his own freehold, and have an improving property to leave to his children.

The present opportunity of purchasing should not be neglected, as very little land is now for sale in the city—and the Terms will be made so easy as to be within the reach of any man in steady and regular employ.

Title unexceptionable—being a Grant from the Crown.

A Plan of the Allotments can be seen at the Rooms of the Auctioneer, where every information will be afforded to intending purchasers ; or, at the office of George King, Esq., Pitt-street. 10218

At half-past 12 o'clock,
AT THE CIRCULAR QUAY,

THE unrivalled clipper cutter THE MAID OF AUSTRALIA, 35 TONS REGISTER, With all her stores, tackle, and appurtenances.

The sailing qualities of this vessel are of the first order, and as an attendant on H. M. ships surveying in the Southern Seas a more desirable craft could not be had. For a cruizer off the port in the service of the Customs, or of the Water Police, she is equally well adapted.

To gentlemen resident on the harbour Messrs. Mort and Brown especially commend this vessel as one of the best calculated for a private yacht of any craft which has yet anchored within these waters ; having been built for this express purpose at one of Her Majesty's Dockyards.

She has suffered somewhat from tempestuous weather in her recent run from China, but her refitting may be completed at a very reasonable outlay.

The yacht and stores to be taken with all faults as they now lie, without any allowance or weight, length, or any defect whatever.

Apply at the Marshal's Office, the Auctioneers' ; or to Francis Hayman, at the Circular Wharf, the waterman in charge.

MOST IMPORTANT SALE OF VALUABLE LANDED AND HOUSE PROPERTIES

TERMS—Twenty-five per cent. cash deposit ; residue, bill at three months.

MORT AND BROWN

Have received instructions from the Trustees of the above estate to sell by public auction, at their Rooms, George-street,
THIS DAY, JUNE 24,
At 11 o'clock,

THE following highly valuable Town and Country Properties, viz. :—

LOT 1.

THE GLENDIVER ESTATE, immediately adjoining the well-known and highly productive properties of Messrs. Jas. and Wm. Macarthur, in the county of Camden, and consisting of

of grazing and agricultural land, from which a large income may be derived, either by farming in one property, or by availing of the lucrative plan of letting in small farms.

☞ As this splendid estate is only an agreeable day's ride from Sydney, and from Camden, Campbelltown, and Appin only a few miles, the Auctioneers consider a detailed description of its many advantages superfluous.

IT WILL BE SOLD IN ONE LOT.

LOT 2.

SIX HUNDRED AND FIFTY ACRES, SITUATE UPON THE WILLIAM RIVER,

To which it has a very large frontage. It is described in the deeds as "All that piece "or parcel of land in the territory of New "South Wales, containing by admeasurement "650 acres, be the same more or less, situated "in the county of Durham and parish of——, "commencing at the northern extreme of the "west boundary line of W. R. Scott's 1280 "acres primary grant, and bounded on the "east by 52 chains of that boundary line, "bearing south ; on the south by a west line "of 80 chains, on the west by a north line of "145 chains to William River ; and on the "north by the William River, downwards to "the northern extreme of the west boundary "line of Scott's grant aforesaid."

☞ In addition to the advantages which this property enjoys from its very extensive frontage to the William River, it lies contiguous to the well known "Underbank Estate," and commands the whole of the back run.

LOT 3.

WATER MILL AND COTTAGE, ON THE WILLIAM RIVER, WITH FIVE ACRES OF LAND.

All that piece or parcel of Land with the Water Mill, Cottage, and other Buildings thereon erected and built, containing by admeasurement 5 ACRES, more or less, situated in the county of Durham, in the colony of New South Wales, bounded on the south by the William River, and on the north-east and west by the Government reserve, adjoining Clarence Town.

☞ From its close proximity to the township, and the number of small settlers in its vicinity, this concern in good hands ought to pay well. It is well known as SINGLETON'S MILL.

LOT 4.

THE WHEATSHEAF INN, (BETTER KNOWN AS HANNELL'S,)

Situate between Hexham and Maitland, upon the banks of the Hunter River, together with all those having extensive frontage to that river, with the advantage of daily communication with the steamers.

This property, although only let at present at the low rental of £30 per annum, is worth considerably more, doing as it is a large trade, being the only Inn betwixt Maitland and Newcastle, besides commanding the trade of Hexham It has recently undergone very extensive repairs.

The land is of fine rich alluvial description

LOT 5.

51 ACRES AT BOTANY, SUITABLE FOR MARKET GARDENS.

This land is situated on the Parish Road leading from Sydney to Botany, beyond the Waterloo Estate, and bounded by Messrs. Hollinshed, Hayes, Want, and Hatfield, and appears on the Government plans as Lot 11.

☞ The rapidly increasing value of all the garden land in the neighbourhood of Sydney ought to be a sufficient inducement to purchase any of the few lots that remain like this unproductive, as the demand for market gardens of about ten acres each, is daily becoming greater.

This plot would make a beautiful site for a country residence, where a person might live at little expense beyond his grocer's bill.

LOTS 6, 7, 8.

PARRAMATTA.

LOT 6 All that piece or parcel of land situate on the east side of CHURCH-STREET, containing by admeasurement 80 rods, &c.

☞ This allotment is immediately on the Parramatta side of the bridge, crossing the River to the Windsor Road, and has a very large frontage to the Parramatta River, besides its extensive frontage to Church-street.

LOT 7 adjoins the above, and extends along the Parramatta River up to lot 8.

LOT 8 is immediately beyond Lot 7, and has also large frontage to the River.

☞ All these lots must be highly valuable, looking to the immediate prospect which we now have of uniting Parramatta with Sydney by Railroad. They occupy a capital position.

LOT 9.

SIX SHOPS IN PARRAMATTA.

These excellent and substantially built premises (occupying in all 43 perches of land) are situate in Church-street, betwixt its junction with Phillip-street and the Bridge crossing to the Windsor Road—a first-rate position for business, as is fully shown by the fact of the shops always being let to good tenants.

All the tenements are in good repair, and are now yielding a rental of £125 per annum —five being let at £18 each, and one at £35 per annum.

☞ Parties having money could not desire a better investment than is here offered, and as the sale is positive, and without the least reserve, surely it is well worth their while looking to.

 The above most important properties are put before the public in as brief a form as possible, but it will afford the auctioneers much pleasure to give every possible additional information upon application, as the plans, with full descriptions from the Grant, and other information, are in their possession.

Remember—there will be no reserve. 3 9

MORT AND BROWN

Have received instructions to sell by public auction, at their Rooms, George-street,

THE ABOVE most splendid pastoral property, not to be surpassed by anything in the colony !

THE SHEEP,

(which are warranted sound and never to have been diseased) are really fine woolled, and consist of the following most excellent proportions, viz. :—

587	Ewes,	9 months old
410	„	12 „	„
626	„	2 years	„
100	„	3 „	„
1830	„	4 „	„

THE STATION

is situated on the Lower Condamine, in the district of Darling Downs, and is entitled to a 14 years' lease. It is in the neighbourhood of Messrs. Blythe, Edwards, Isaacs, Birrell, Windeyer, and Gogg's runs—distant only 100 miles from the flourishing township of Drayton, and 200 miles from Ipswich, the head of navigation.

The country is open undulating ridges, intersected with myall richly grassed,

AND MOST ABUNDANTLY WATERED,

having stood the late dry weather (which has parched up so much of the Downs country,) without any apparent diminution of its unbounded supply. It is warranted to carry in all seasons at least 20,000 SHEEP,

BESIDES

A GOOD HERD OF CATTLE!

Indeed its carrying properties as yet have scarcely been ascertained, for to quote the Superintendent's letter—"as to stock you may "put as many as you like upon it. The "casualties by natural deaths since its forma- "tion have not exceeded two per cent., "thereby showing the undoubted healthful- "ness of the station, and no losses have been "sustained from any other causes."

AS A FATTENING STATION

it is not to be surpassed, its ample pasturage, water, and extent, rendering it fully equal to fatten the full number it is estimated to carry ; and as the boiling establishment of Mr. Ayerst (whose tallow stands so high in the Sydney market,) is within 100 miles of its homestead, an immense fortune is to be realized by the fattening of stock alone !

The mail from the Maranoa, the seat of the Commissioner, is shortly intended to meet the Condamine mail at this station, and an officer and party of Native Police will also be stationed here. As an agreeable country for residence its great beauty of scenery and fertile soil renders it especially desirable, and when the advantages before stated are taken into consideration it is no figure of speech to say that it is INVALUABLE, and before many years are over will be as highly prized as any of its sister runs in the Darling Downs District. The Superintendent's words are—"The run is a first rate one—there is nothing in this part equal to it."

THE IMPROVEMENTS

Upon the Station consist of the following, viz.—

Superintendent's hut
Store and kitchen
Two men's huts
Stockyard
Woolshed
Horse paddock
260 Hurdles

A mixed lot of 300 to 400 head of well-bred quiet cattle, well worthy the attention of purchasers, as also the horses, working bullocks, drays, tools, implements and stores on the station, will have to be taken by the purchaser of the sheep at a valuation.

☞ The above magnificent property will be sold in one lot to wind up a partnership account, by order of the Executors of the late John Dangar, Esq. The judgment of this gentlemen in the selection of runs was well known to many ; and he devoted much valuable time in the choice of the one now for sale. There will not be the SLIGHTEST RESERVE ; and the terms may be arranged on application to the Auctioneers, from whom all particulars may be obtained.

REMEMBER—NO RESERVE WHATEVER!

SPIRIT KEGS, MEASURES, BAR FITTINGS, COUNTER, &c.

The quality of the above is so well known, the whole being nearly new, that the Auctioneer considers any remark from him quite unnecessary.

In consequence of the shortness of the days, and the number of lots that have to be offered, the sale will commence each day exactly at 10 o'clock. Intending purchasers, therefore, will do well to bear this in mind, as the whole must positively be sold.
